

of Strong Children.

A little bit of a four-year-old came hurrying along and when Grouchy Papa didn't step aside for him, the youngster bawled, "Get out of the way, you good-for-nothing Grown-Up."

Grouchy Papa wasn't used to being addressed that way, and he said, "Well, of all the impudent brats!"

"What!" cried the four-year-old, "such language from a grown-up to its youngsters. You need to be taught a lesson, and as your nurse seems to have neglected you, I'll attend to you myself." He leaped to Grouchy Papa's shoulder, gave him a cuff on the ear, jumped down and disappeared before the astonished Grouchy Papa knew what had happened.
